

For the last week the world has been following the oldest and most exciting drama of the sea—what Captain's choice should be when a ship is left dangerously crippled and still afloat after a storm.

Capt. Kurt Carlsen had that choice put to him when hurricane weather came up his U. S. freighter, the Enterprise, sending her in a dangerous list and making the vessel unmanageable for the crew. Carlsen ordered his men off the ship—but then the captain, tradition "last man," decided to stay. It makes good reading. It always has, and always will—one man risking his life in a gamble with the sea.

Carlsen's candor compels us to point out that it is a true gamble, matchless in the annals of the sea, and a genuine financial reward against the risk of sinking and death. For when a ship is abandoned, the high seas and doesn't actually sink, both vessel and cargo belong to whoever salvages her. Before the captain who stays and brings her in has automatically himself a big reward from either the owners or the underwriters. Carlsen doesn't leave the gamble for against money a man risks his life—in an Atlantic that has claimed millions.

Capt. Carlsen gambled and won. More power to him. But it's still a close question—others before him letting the same choice have gone to that place with the euphonious name of Davy Jones' locker.

Our editorial of December 12 criticizing the United States Supreme Court for its decision against the Lorain (Ohio) Journal was widely distributed over the South, in the interest of a fair report should tell you a great many papers don't agree with it.

Under the heading "The Court Is Right," the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times said:

"The supreme court was exactly right in deciding that Lorain, Ohio, newspapers could not refuse to accept advertising from firms which used a rival radio station. Any other ruling would have violated the real purpose of the antitrust law and every rule of good sense and good business. A newspaper, the courts have determined, is the judge of what advertising it will accept. The publisher can establish rules to govern standards of acceptability, and can refuse to print advertisements from firms of doubtful character, or advertisements which are not in the public interest."

We have absolutely no awe of the so-called big-time newspapers, either their editors or what the editors write—and our Chattanooga contemporary is a good example of a big city editor sticking his neck out about something he is unfamiliar with, advertising, while a small town editor has to be familiar with the "whole works."

As I explained in our piece of December 12 the Lorain (Ohio) Journal was guilty of conspiracy, coercion, and dirty-dealing; but the good conduct and public acceptance of America's newspapers is up to the citizens themselves. Lorain is assured of wire and feature service from a competing newspaper any time it's really fed up with its present sheet—but for the United States Supreme Court to go sticking its nose into the advertising business which maintains America's public press smells of the blood-and-sand policy of the Argentine dictator Juan Peron. He suppressed La Prensa not by censorship of editorials but through the business office.

My Chattanooga friend suggests that despite the Lorain (Ohio) Journal decision "a newspaper is still the judge of what advertising it will accept." That's just his notion. The Department of Justice thinks otherwise.

Just two days after announcement of the Lorain decision still another newspaper got a letter from the Department of Justice. The newspaper had turned down an out-of-town advertisement. The Department of Justice wanted to know "how come?"

Well, the great majority of newspapers won't accept advertising promoting retail sales in competition with the stores of their own cities. We feel it's one of the cornerstones of a free local press.

I might add that we also feel it's no business of the politicians in the Department of Justice or the politicians on the United States Supreme Court.

But unlike my ivory-towered editorialist from Chattanooga I feel that the above-mentioned politicians do intend to make it their business. And if the politicians are pointing up for a totalitarian state can "handle" the newspapers then they won't have any trouble at all making the rest of the businessmen their chain-gang.

Seasonal Layoffs Hit State Industries

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP)—Seasonal layoffs in manufacturing industries, construction work have been followed by a decline in non-farm employment in the Little Rock area during November.

Assistant Administrator Roland Shelton of the Arkansas Employment Security Division said today 66,750 workers were on layoff in the area during November. This was a loss of 450 from preceding month and a loss of 1,500 above the figure for same month in 1950.

Taft Asserts He Has Enough Pledges to Win

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) claimed today that if all the pledges he now holds are translated into voting strength, he will win the Republican presidential nomination.

That was the Ohioan's answer to the statement of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that he is a Republican and would respond to a "clever call to political duty," but would not personally campaign for the GOP nomination.

Taft told a reporter he believes this makes Eisenhower only a "draft" possibility, adding:

"If all of the pledges we have obtained from all over the country can be translated into delegates when they are chosen, I believe we have more than half of the convention votes."

The GOP nominating meeting, to be held in Chicago early in July, will have slightly more than 1,200 delegates, with more than 600 votes needed for the nomination. None of the delegates has been formally chosen yet.

Taft said he always assumed that other candidates and he were seeking the nomination and that "Gen. Eisenhower would be one of them."

He intimated he had expected Eisenhower to doff his uniform as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces and return as a civilian to campaign.

But Eisenhower said at his Paris headquarters yesterday that "under no circumstances will I ask for relief from this assignment in order to seek nomination to political office and I shall not participate in the pre-convention activities of others who may have such an intention with respect to me."

Taft said he interprets this as meaning Eisenhower will have to be drafted to obtain the nomination, and commented:

"I think this will make matters easier for us."

400 Injured in Jerusalem Rioting

Jerusalem, Jan. 8 (AP)—Police said nearly 400 persons were injured in anti-government riots sparked by bitter anger over a proposal for Israel's Jewish government to negotiate directly with Germany.

Almost 400 of the rioters were arrested, most of them as they tried to leave Jerusalem last night the police said.

Police set up barbed wire barricades, fired in the air, and used tear gas and clubs in a two-hour battle yesterday to keep 2,000 Israeli youths from storming the Knesset (parliament) building during the Knesset session.

The police announced 140 of the defending officers and 250 civilians were injured. Many were hospitalized.

The rioters were protesting a proposal to open direct talks with Germany over claims of about 1.2 billion dollars in money and goods for reparations to dispossessed Jews. The claims so far have been pressed only through the Big Four occupying powers in Germany.

Police said the rioters were followers of Menachem Beigin, leader of the Herut party. Herut succeeded the anti-British underground organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi.

The riot forced a two-hour suspension of parliamentary debates, which lapsed into uproar.

Rioters used tear gas, which a breeze carried into the face of police. Stones broke many of the windows in the Knesset building. One stone injured Haran Rubin, Knesset member. Tear gas wafted through broken windows but most deputies stayed in their seats with tears streaming.

When Beigin, a member of the Knesset, started to speak, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion cried: "What about your hoodlums outside?"

Beigin shouted, "You're a holligan yourself."

He defied the speaker's instructions to withdraw the remark, saying he could be stopped "only by force."

Lions to Study Possibilities of Field House

Haskell Jones of station KXAR addressed the Lions Club Monday on the possibility of providing better basketball facilities for Hope.

Mr. Jones said that the livestock colesium could be made into an excellent field house seating several thousand people. He also said that from experience in Kentucky the town would benefit greatly by the business brought in by out of town people.

A committee consisting of Bill Gentry, Joe Ensminger and Cecil O'Steen was appointed to investigate the matter fully. An open meeting will be held at the colesium Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the matter.

Cline Franks and Horace Hubbard have charge of the program for next week.

Opponents Fight New Race Track

By The Associated Press
Another big hurdle has been placed in the rocky path of officials of Dixie Downs, Inc., seeking a horse race track at West Memphis, Ark.

Van Lyell of Hot Springs, chairman of the Arkansas Racing Commission, announced Monday night that the commission would meet Jan. 16 to review qualifications of a Dixie Downs official.

The commission chairman said the meeting would not be open to the public, but the commission will consider:

1. The financial qualifications of the official, or
2. His moral standing.

Under Arkansas law these are the only two issues that can be considered in granting a franchise for operation for a race track in Arkansas.

Failure to meet these requirements could mean rejection of the granted Dixie Downs last November.

That action came the second time the commission had considered the Dixie Downs request. Earlier the commission group followed Gov. McMath's wishes and refused to grant a franchise.

In November, McMath asked for resignation of all commission members who voted to grant the permit.

When commissioners didn't follow his request, McMath said he excluded Lyell from that list. Lyell abstained from voting. Eight other members approved the permit; one didn't vote.

Rep. Glenn F. Walther of Pulaski County and attorney for Dixie Downs said he had not heard of the proposed Jan. 16 meeting.

Church leaders in Crittenden County have protested the establishment of the proposed track at West Memphis.

A referendum election has been called for Jan. 22 to determine whether residents of Crittenden County favor the track. The election was a stipulation of the racing commission in granting the franchise.

Civic and church leaders at Memphis, Tenn., across the Mississippi River from West Memphis, also are protesting the track in East Arkansas. They say it would drain money from Memphis.

McMath to 'Explain' Income Tax Deal

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP)—Gov. McMath says he'll discuss "in due time" the full particulars surrounding his payment of $9,170 for settlement on income taxes over a three-year period.

The governor yesterday declined to elaborate on his statement Saturday that published reports on his tax settlement for 1948, 1949 and 1950 were distorted.

McMath, in a statement to the Memphis Commercial Appeal, said a story quoting unnamed federal revenue officials distorted information about the case.

"The newspaper account quoted the officials as saying that the amount paid by McMath covered, or the most part, funds given him as campaign contributions which he apparently had used as personal funds."

In branding that account as a distortion of information about the case, the governor said the report apparently was an effort of some federal officials "to embarrass and discredit me both personally and politically."

McMath said he would name the federal officials when he discusses the case again.

14-Year-old Youth Is Found Chained to Bed After Being Kidnapped by Bank Robber

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 8 (UP)—A 14-year-old boy was found chained to a bed today where he had been held prisoner and tortured for 10 weeks by an accused bank robber.

Ricky Hendricksen was released from the four-foot chain and padlocks which held him to the bed by police who rushed to the address supplied by John D. Billett, 24, after hours of intensive questioning.

Ricky was in "surprisingly good health," but he told officers that Billett had beaten him about the face and head with his fists and shoes during the early days of the boy's captivity. Ricky was kidnapped Oct. 20.

The boy was rushed to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hendricksen, where his mother burst into tears and swept him into her arms.

Billett, who yesterday robbed $20,915 from a downtown bank and already was held in lieu of $20,000 bail on that charge, admitted to police that he kidnapped Ricky and subjected the boy to frequent immoral treatment.

Ricky said that Billett grabbed him Oct. 20 at the used car lot where both worked.

Police speculated that he probably had run away, but his parents insisted he had been kidnapped.

A lone gunman had entered the Eighth South and State Branch of the First Security Bank shortly before noon yesterday, ordered everyone to depositors into a corner and escaped with a sack full of currency. Acting on a tip from a car rental agency, Billett was arrested at a downtown apartment store.

He was subjected to intensive questioning including the disappearance of the Hendricksen boy. Billett previously had been questioned about the youth's disappearance.

At 1:30 a. m. today, Billett blurted out, "I have him chained to a bed," according to FBI Agent Paul J. Callis. Billett also admitted kidnapping the youth.

Officers rushed from the station and drove through a blizzard to the address given by Billett. There they found Ricky.

Before his confession, Billett was arraigned in an unusual 11:30 p. m. procedure before a U. S. commissioner. His bond was set at $20,000 and he was ordered to jail until he could produce it.

However, that was before his admission to the kidnapping and holding of Ricky.

One tie-in between Billett and the disappearance of the Hendricksen boy were pictures of the accused bank robber. Employees at the bank identified them as photographs of

The Hope Chamber of Commerce was host, yesterday, to Dr. David S. Campbell of the U. S. Department of Commerce, Washington D. C. and F. M. Spurling, Industrial Engineer with the Arkansas Resources and Development Commission, Little Rock.

Dr. Campbell is with the Area Development Division of the U. S. A luncheon at the Hotel Barlow and the conference in the Chamber of Commerce office were attended by: Guy Basse, Brainerd-Vivory Inc., Little Rock; Herbert Stephens, Stephens Wholesale Grocer Co., Syd McMath, First National Bank, J. H. Jones, Supt. of Schools, Robert LaGrone, Citizens National Bank, W. M. Sparks, Farmers Home Administration, Mike Kelly, Ladies Specialty Shop and Ray Lawrence, Secretary Chamber of Commerce.

Suburbanite Is the Daniel Boone of Today — He Inhabits the Country's Last Frontier

By HAL BOYLE
New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Daniel Boone of today is the suburbanite. He inhabits America's last frontier — the suburbs. And it is the only frontier in our country's history that is increasing instead of dwindling.

A suburb is one of those valuing places you get lost in when you drive out of a big city. Where they come from no body knows, but every year motorists report more and more of them.

They usually bear such quaint names as Quagmire Heights or Swampville-on-the-Rapids. There seems to be no particular reason why they spring up in any one place. There is a report that once a railroad pulling out of a city paused courteously to let a cow cross the track. Before the train started up some enterprising real estate dealer wandered by, stuck up a sign saying "Bovine Meadows," and started selling lots to the passengers.

Suburbs vary, but they usually have these things in common: An antique store, two liquor stores, four real estate offices, one taxi cab can never get when you need it, and a railroad station that closes on cold nights whenever the ticket seller sees a lone wayfarer who wants to come in and get warm.

You also usually find a fresh cemetery in an older suburb because the natives don't like the idea of having the newcomers buried beside their own vanished kin. They figure it is bad enough that they have to live with these Johnny-come-latelys — but why should a real oldtimer have to share his graveyard, too?

The average suburbanite becomes one because he feels "the city is no place to raise children." So he buys a brightly painted home in the suburbs too big for a dollhouse and too small to shelter a St. Bernard dog.

Here he and his happy swarming brood live in the same kind of intimacy and harmony visible in a wrestling ring.

He becomes a pilgrim between his home in the hinterland and his desk in the city, and he is a prisoner of the railroad that links them.

There are two big events in his year: the days when they change the timebells and provide him with new reading matter.

The suburbanite has all the pains of a farmer and few of the joys of the urban dweller. In summer he comes to work beesting and overborne with poison ivy, complaining, "a new bug ruined my garden last night. I fed DDT to the bugs and they just cried for more."

Winter strikes him with a peculiar virulence. He finds that the only thing free in the suburbs is the air, and sometimes there is too much of it after October. But when he staggers into work on January mornings, pinching his frost-bitten nose and ears, he only mutters manfully:

"My, the fresh air was like wine today out where I live." Frozen wine!

Bad weather shows him in, debt snows him under. He thought taxes would be low when he moved to the suburbs, but that was before the city council decided to pave the streets and build a new high school.

But your true suburbanite is a hardy soul. He is as much of a frontiersman as Daniel Boone or Kit Carson. They at least had a knife. There is nothing between him and disaster but his wits—and a cold paper mortgage.

He got out of the city because the traffic drove him crazy, and finds that it is as hard to park a car in a suburban shopping district as it is in Times Square. He yearns for neighborliness, and the guy who moves in next door buys a dog to bite his children.

The suburbanite gamely sticks it out, however, until the mortgage is paid and the kids reared. Then he sells his house to a new frontiersman, and tells his wife:

"Come on, honey, let's move back to the city — and start living again."

And even after that if you mention fresh air to him he gets violently ill, for when a man retires from the frontier he leaves it forever.

Crippled Ship, Captain Near English Harbor

By LEONARD LEDDINGTON
With The Flying Enterprise Conveyor Jan. 8 (AP)—Capt. Kurt (Slay) Carlsen strolled the slanting deck of the Flying Enterprise today and shouted out jubilantly "Everything is okay!"

His hurricane wrecked freighter had begun veering erratically at the end of its two ropes this morning, forcing a slowdown, but the rescue tug Turmoil steamed on at a walking pace. The safety of Falmouth, England, harbor was only 80 miles—less than a day's away at 12:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. C. S. T.).

The sky was overcast. The sun pierced through but only occasionally. The sea was rough but it was still good weather for a January day.

"There is nothing to worry about," Carlsen shouted to the Associated Press tug Englishman riding along 10 to 15 yards away from the crippled freighter.

As he spoke, the Atlantic lapped onto the sloping maindeck. Carlsen ignored the sloshing water.

We passed the 37-year-old captain a batch of newspapers to help him while away the long hours.

Our package went over on a line that the Englishman slung across to the Enterprise, where Carlsen and Kenneth Diney, mate of the Turmoil, chatted merrily.

When the delivery was made Carlsen waved happily and shouted back his thanks.

Carlsen wore a thick beard. He was dressed in blue denim trousers and a Navy-type short coat with a now shapeless khaki hat—like a story-book picture of a merchant seaman.

He looked surprisingly fit.

Ten days had elapsed since the worst Atlantic storm in 50 years wrecked his 8,711-ton ship, forced him to evacuate 40 crewmen and 10 passengers into the churning sea and waiting rescue vessels, and started him on his valiant effort to keep the Enterprise from becoming a prize of the sun.

"It's all going fine!" he yelled this morning.

We told him the Associated Press had delivered the message of good cheer that he sent via Associated Press facilities last weekend to his home in Woodbridge, N. J.

On our "loud-hailer," or amplifying system, we shouted out that all seemed well back in Jersey.

"Thanks! Many thanks!" Kurt answered.

"Excuse me!" he called out. "I'm going to have my breakfast now."

He and Diney crawled hand over hand down the sloping decks and disappeared somewhere inside the listing ship.

A short while later Carlsen came back and chatted again—in shouts—just to while away the time.

Communication between the Englishman and the Enterprise was difficult. Carlsen is saving his weakened radio batteries. He seemed able to hear our amplified voices readily. We had difficulty in hearing him.

We did try a few minutes of shouts across the waves conversation. Then Carlsen again asked to be excused.

"I've got to go forward to check the lines," he said.

Carlsen's tattered American flag flew proudly from the Enterprise. Dancing there in the wind, it seemed to symbolize all that is best in America's seafaring traditions. Sometimes the Enterprise swung to a complete right angle from the turmoil.

Local Sergeant Appointed Officer of National Guard

Captain John A. Rust, company commander of the local National Guard Unit, Co. A, 153rd Infantry, announced today that Sgt. Walter L. Sallee, 1012 West 4th Street of this city, was appointed a Second Lieutenant of Infantry in the Arkansas National Guard on Dec. 20.

Lt. Sallee appeared before an examining board of officers who were representatives of 4th Army and the Military Department of Arkansas.

Lt. Sallee qualified himself for this appointment, by completion of the ten series of subcourses, a correspondence course conducted by the Army General School at Fort Riley, Kansas, which is available to all members of the National Guard, during the period of Sept. 13 to Nov. 4, attaining a rating of Superior.

Lt. Sallee recently received a letter of congratulations from the Adjutant General of Arkansas.

Capt. Rust further commended Lt. Sallee for attaining a score of 150 on the army general classification test. Since reorganization of the National Guard in 1946, this score has been reached by only one other officer. The city of Hope is fortunate in having Lt. Sallee as a Platoon Leader in its local Guard unit, Capt. Rust said.

State Enjoined From Selling Bauxite Ore

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Arkansas Resources and Development Commission today was enjoined temporarily from selling any bauxite ore from grounds of the Confederate Home at Sweet Home, near here.

The temporary order also prohibited transfer of any occupants of the home to Arkansas State hospital.

The injunction was issued by Chancellor Guy E. Williams on complaint of George E. Wimberly, Little Rock, shortly before the commission was to consider bids for sale of bauxite deposits at the Confederate Home grounds.

The bids were opened yesterday. Duin Bauxite Co., Little Rock, offered the highest bid, $1.86 a ton.

Wimberly contended the proposed sale is illegal. He said transfer of some 40 widows and daughters of Confederate veterans to the State hospital, pending construction of a new institution for the state's indigent aged, also would violate the law.

The hospital is inadequate for present needs and not suited for accommodation of additional occupants, he said.

Wimberly's lawyer is Pulaski County Rep. Glenn Withers, a political foe of the state administration.

French Blame Vishinsky With Peace Slowdown

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—France's United Nations delegate, Jean Chauvel, today accused Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of causing a slowdown in the Korean armistice negotiations.

The truce talks at Panmunjom "weren't going so badly until the initiative was taken by the Soviet Delegate here," Chauvel told the 60-nation U. N. political committee.

Chauvel was attacking a Soviet resolution calling for a high level meeting of the Security Council to intervene in the armistice discussions. The Russian proposal also would dissolve the collective measures committee which has recommended a regional security plan backed by the West.

Vishinsky at once angrily replied that since the talks at the front have been going on without results for six months, they "must be expedited to a successful conclusion."

Vishinsky contended this could be done only by a "high level meeting of the most responsible persons in the world, except the chiefs of state, of course."

This was interpreted as a clear demand for the foreign ministers of the 11 Security Council countries to take over the talks.

Vishinsky's ideas were expected to be defeated today or early tomorrow in a vote on the Western-backed plan for authorizing the regional security forces to combat aggression.

Most of the 60 nations were expected to vote for it. The Soviet Union and her allies bitterly oppose it.

The proposal, sponsored by 11 of the 15 members of the collective measures committee, recommended economic and military sanctions against aggressors and would authorize the use of such regional forces as those of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) against aggression anywhere.

A key provision would give the U. N. General Assembly power to act when Security Council action is halted by a veto. The Western powers command a majority in the assembly and could take whatever action they wished over Soviet objections. Russia, China, France, Britain and the United States have veto powers in the Security Council.

New Angles Develop in Disappearance

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—New developments were promised today in the disappearance of Mrs. Hughette LeMay, 21-year-old Canadian beauty missing since Friday.

Sheriff's Deputy James O. Barker of Monroe County, leading the investigation, predicted a "new development which may change our whole concept of the case," but said it might be 24 hours before matters came to a head.

He declined to elaborate.

Raymond Daoust, brother of the missing girl, reported he and Hughette's husband, 26-year-old George LeMay found evidence that the young woman was seen Saturday afternoon about 28 miles west of Miami on the Tamiami Trail. She was fishing off the Overseas Highway from Miami to the Florida Keys when she vanished.

Daoust arrived Sunday from Montreal to aid in the search. He said "Smoky" Morris, operator at a fishing camp at Frog City, told him the girl and a young couple in a jeep station wagon stopped at his camp Saturday afternoon and spent an hour there.

Morris said the group went for a short boat ride and then drove west toward Fort Myers.

Daoust said that when Morris was shown a picture of Hughette, he was positive it was she.

Mrs. A. E. Moses Succumbs in Local Hospital

Mrs. Bessie Brooks Moses, aged 43, died Monday in a local hospital. She is survived by her husband, Arlin E. Moses, two sons, Coy and Wilton Moses, three brothers, Bill Brooks of Malvern, Fred Brooks of Shreveport and Jessie Brooks of Hope.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at Central Church of Christ, 9 miles south on Highway 29. Burial will be in Hickabee Cemetery.

Active pallbearers: Harry Sinyard, Edwin Sinyard, Elbert Tarpoley, Ed Turner and Lester Barham.

Prisoner Plan Rewritten But Reds Reject

Panmunjom, Korea, Jan. 8 (UP)—The United Nations rewrote its war prisoner exchange program today after the attempt to meet Communist objections, but the Reds said it still is "unacceptable."

Communist negotiators in the prisoner subcommittee nevertheless were unusually amiable in contrast to their recalcitrant hostility yesterday.

The Reds also were less antagonistic in the truce supervision subcommittee, but they still stubbornly refused to agree to a ban on airfield repair and construction during an armistice.

U. N. circles speculated the Reds were trying to demonstrate by their adamant refusal to compromise that the Allies might just as well accept Russia's demand in Paris that the Security Council take over the truce talks.

However, both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 11 a. m. Wednesday (9 p. m. today EST).

Senior Admiral R. E. Libly told the Communists that the U. N. had rewritten its prisoner exchange proposal "to eliminate any grounds for your technical opposition."

The proposal, as before, calls for a man-for-man exchange first of U. N. war prisoners for Communist war prisoners, then of Allied civilian internees for Communist war prisoners, and finally of South Korean displaced persons for Communist war prisoners.

The revised version for the first time puts in writing Allied assurances that any Communist war prisoners remaining in Allied hands after the man-for-man exchange had been completed would be released automatically.

It also drops the previous Allied demand that South Koreans serving in the Communist armies be reclassified as war prisoners and repatriated in the man-for-man exchange program.

The Communists had feared that thousands of Communist war prisoners would remain in Allied hands under a man-for-man exchange because the U. N. holds so many more war prisoners than the Reds.

The new proposal retains the provision in the old that no war prisoner, civilian internee or displaced person shall be forced to return to his homeland against his wishes.

Likewise retained is the demand that any Communist war prisoners released in exchange for civilians be forbidden to fight again in Korea.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho promptly labelled the revised program "unacceptable."

French Blame Vishinsky With Peace Slowdown

Paris, Jan. 8 (AP)—France's United Nations delegate, Jean Chauvel, today accused Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of causing a slowdown in the Korean armistice negotiations.

The truce talks at Panmunjom "weren't going so badly until the initiative was taken by the Soviet Delegate here," Chauvel told the 60-nation U. N. political committee.

Chauvel was attacking a Soviet resolution calling for a high level meeting of the Security Council to intervene in the armistice discussions. The Russian proposal also would dissolve the collective measures committee which has recommended a regional security plan backed by the West.

Vishinsky at once angrily replied that since the talks at the front have been going on without results for six months, they "must be expedited to a successful conclusion."

Vishinsky contended this could be done only by a "high level meeting of the most responsible persons in the world, except the chiefs of state, of course."

This was interpreted as a clear demand for the foreign ministers of the 11 Security Council countries to take over the talks.

Vishinsky's ideas were expected to be defeated today or early tomorrow in a vote on the Western-backed plan for authorizing the regional security forces to combat aggression.

Most of the 60 nations were expected to vote for it. The Soviet Union and her allies bitterly oppose it.

The proposal, sponsored by 11 of the 15 members of the collective measures committee, recommended economic and military sanctions against aggressors and would authorize the use of such regional forces as those of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) against aggression anywhere.

A key provision would give the U. N. General Assembly power to act when Security Council action is halted by a veto. The Western powers command a majority in the assembly and could take whatever action they wished over Soviet objections. Russia, China, France, Britain and the United States have veto powers in the Security Council.

New Angles Develop in Disappearance

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP)—New developments were promised today in the disappearance of Mrs. Hughette LeMay, 21-year-old Canadian beauty missing since Friday.

Sheriff's Deputy James O. Barker of Monroe County, leading the investigation, predicted a "new development which may change our whole concept of the case," but said it might be 24 hours before matters came to a head.

He declined to elaborate.

Raymond Daoust, brother of the missing girl, reported he and Hughette's husband, 26-year-old George LeMay found evidence that the young woman was seen Saturday afternoon about 28 miles west of Miami on the Tamiami Trail. She was fishing off the Overseas Highway from Miami to the Florida Keys when she vanished.

Daoust arrived Sunday from Montreal to aid in the search. He said "Smoky" Morris, operator at a fishing camp at Frog City, told him the girl and a young couple in a jeep station wagon stopped at his camp Saturday afternoon and spent an hour there.

Morris said the group went for a short boat ride and then drove west toward Fort Myers.

Daoust said that when Morris was shown a picture of Hughette, he was positive it was she.

Local Sergeant Appointed Officer of National Guard

Captain John A. Rust, company commander of the local National Guard Unit, Co. A, 153rd Infantry, announced today that Sgt. Walter L. Sallee, 1012 West 4th Street of this city, was appointed a Second Lieutenant of Infantry in the Arkansas National Guard on Dec. 20.

Lt. Sallee appeared before an examining board of officers who were representatives of 4th Army and the Military Department of Arkansas.

Lt. Sallee qualified himself for this appointment, by completion of the ten series of subcourses, a correspondence course conducted by the Army General School at Fort Riley, Kansas, which is available to all members of the National Guard, during the period of Sept. 13 to Nov. 4, attaining a rating of Superior.

Lt. Sallee recently received a letter of congratulations from the Adjutant General of Arkansas.

Capt. Rust further commended Lt. Sallee for attaining a score of 150 on the army general classification test. Since reorganization of the National Guard in 1946, this score has been reached by only one other officer. The city of Hope is fortunate in having Lt. Sallee as a Platoon Leader in its local Guard unit, Capt. Rust said.

State Enjoined From Selling Bauxite Ore

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Arkansas Resources and Development Commission today was enjoined temporarily from selling any bauxite ore from grounds of the Confederate Home at Sweet Home, near here.

The temporary order also prohibited transfer of any occupants of the home to Arkansas State hospital.

The injunction was issued by Chancellor Guy E. Williams on complaint of George E. Wimberly, Little Rock, shortly before the commission was to consider bids for sale of bauxite deposits at the Confederate Home grounds.

The bids were opened yesterday. Duin Bauxite Co., Little Rock, offered the highest bid, $1.86 a ton.

Wimberly contended the proposed sale is illegal. He said transfer of some 40 widows and daughters of Confederate veterans to the State hospital, pending construction of a new institution for the state's indigent aged, also would violate the law.

The hospital is inadequate for present needs and not suited for accommodation of additional occupants, he said.

Wimberly's lawyer is Pulaski County Rep. Glenn Withers, a political foe of the state administration.

Local Graduate Joins Fraternity

Clifton Vineyard, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Vineyard of Hampton, Ark. has been initiated into the Theta Tau fraternity at the University of Arkansas while he is majoring in Industrial Engineering.

He was valedictorian of the 1947 Hope high school graduating class.

Milk Price Hearing is Underway

St. Smith, Jan. 8 (AP)—A hearing here on a request by farmers in this area that the federal government fix minimum prices on milk entered its second day today.

The hearing opened in Sebastian county courthouse yesterday. Will Rogers, a referee for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is presiding.

Members of the Farm Bureau Milk Producers Association, representing 250 dairy farmers in seven counties in Arkansas and two in Oklahoma, have asked the government to fix minimum and uniform prices paid to them by milk distributors; regulate the testing of milk and weights, and supply marketing information.

Joe Clalene, association manager, testified at the opening session that producers are not being paid uniform prices, and are "dubious" about milk testing by distributors.

Clalene said the milk market in St. Smith is unstable, and added that the distributors' methods of computing prices confused producers.

Curtis Goldtrap of the Acee Pure Milk Co., testified for the distributors.

He said his group was opposed to all federal controls.

Goldtrap declared that the producers were only seeking a price increase by asking for the controls.

Weather Varies, Mostly Bad

By The Associated Press

There was a variety of weather, most of it bad, over wide areas of the country today.

Rain, sleet and snow hit the Midwest and rain pelleted southern Illinois and the Lower Ohio Valley.

Falls of three to six inches of snow were forecast in some Midwest areas.

It continued cold in the northeastern section of the country, with strong winds on the southern New England coast. Temperatures were below zero in some areas, with a reading of 8 below zero at Montpelier, Vt.

Temperatures remained below normal in the Southeastern states while in the Western areas readings were near seasonal levels. The latest snowstorm to hit Colorado left 14 inches of snow in some mountain areas. The fresh fall again closed three mountain passes which had been opened only a short time following the recent blizzard.

Conway Voting on Parking Meters

Conway, Jan. 8 (AP)—The parking tax is being decided again today by Conway voters.

This is the first Arkansas municipality to face the parking meter issue in 1932.

Conway residents turned down parking meters in a close vote in 1930. Today's vote was scheduled last Oct. 24 when the Conway City Council passed an ordinance authorizing meter installations.

At least seven Arkansas towns installed parking meters during 1931, including Newport, Searcy, Springdale, Malvern, Morrilton, Marianna and McGehee. Twenty-eight Arkansas cities and towns now have meters.

In Harrison, Lewis Dowell, a former legislator, won a court fight against parking meters which had already been installed. Circuit Judge Woody Murray ruled that the Harrison city council had not followed legal procedure in voting to install the meters. The Harrison meters still are in operation, however, pending a Supreme Court appeal.

To Rebuild Bull Shoals Plant

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP) Construction has been started to replace the concrete mixing plant at the Bull Shoals damsite destroyed by fire New Year's Day.

The mixing plant is necessary to complete construction of the power house below the dam. Work on that project is expected to be resumed this weekend.

LT. Col. A. W. Starkey of the U. S. District Engineers office here said yesterday loss in the fire was estimated at $100,000. Origin of the blaze hasn't been determined.

Spa Bank Teller on Probation

St. Smith, Jan. 8 (AP)—A 34-year-old former bank teller at Hot Springs, Ark., has been placed on two years probation after pleading guilty to charges of making false entries to cover up a theft of $5,620.

Mrs. Gloria Walters entered the plea before Federal Judge John E. Miller here yesterday.

She admitted taking the money by altering the books of the Arkansas Trust Co., where she worked.

The theft was uncovered by bank examiners investigating another shortage.

Their investigation also resulted in the conviction of Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Stokes, also a teller, and her husband, Herbert, on charges of embezzling $91,602 from the bank. Stokes did not work at the bank.

Convict Still Eluding Officers

Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP)— Authorities still haven't located a killer who failed to return to the Arkansas prison from a Christmas furlough.

An alarm has been broadcast throughout Arkansas and neighboring states for Tuck Bishop, 56-year-old convict serving two concurrent life sentences for first degree murder.

Bishop shot four men to death at Springfield in 1933.

He was one of 130 convicts given a holiday leave. He was the only one who didn't return.

Prison Supt. Lee Henslee says Bishop apparently left the state in search of medical aid. Henslee said the convicted killer left the Cummins State Prison Farm before Christmas for Little Rock to see about a brace for a crippled leg.

He was due back Dec. 29.

Arkansas State Police said Bishop now is listed as an escaped convict.

Around the Arkansas Sports Loop

By CARL BELL

Little Rock Jan. 8 (AP) — It's generally conceded by now we imagine that the University of Arkansas basketball team isn't going to grab any championships in 1932.

The Razorbacks finished seventh in the pre-season Southwest Conference tournament and have dropped the opener of their regular league campaign.

With this in mind and also noting that there's only one senior on the Arkansas squad we asked Coach Presley Askew if he might not be using the current season to build for the future.

Askew admitted that the future looks brighter, not only because the Razorbacks will be more experienced next winter but also due to the fact that other Southwest squads will lose more good athletes through graduation.

"Take TCU for instance," Askew suggested. "TCU is sure to win the championship this year. It has five senior starters and three front line reserves who also are seniors. Those boys will be missed
next year."

But the Razorback mentor didn't go so far as to say he is only building.

"We are interested in the present and the immediate future. We want to win now and we're trying."

The last time Bruno Ark, was associated with basketball headlines was in the early 40's when Jesse (Red) Wilson came out of that little Marion county town to make a dandy forward for the Razorbacks. Now Bruno has a new claim to round ball fame — champion of Arkansas College's invitational high school tournament.

More than 500 horses already are quartered at Hot Springs' Oaklawn Park for the spring racing meet opening Feb. 25. . . . The state women's bowling tournament, a two-weekend affair, will get under way at Pine Bluff Saturday night. The meet will be held on the lanes owned by Jim Denton, the ex-gridiron now coaching at Arkansas
A. & M. . . . It's beginning to look very much as though Northwest Arkansas again will produce the state high school chess champion
when the March tourney rolls around.
At the moment, El Smith, the defending state title, is the top candidate, but the Grizzlies get a severe test tonight against another undefeated team, Fayetteville.

POLIO FATAL
Little Rock, Jan. 8 (AP) — A Lonoke, Ark., Negro died of polio in a hospital here yesterday — the state's first 1932 death from the disease.
He was William Carter, 41. He was admitted to the hospital last Thursday.
